PROFILE

I am Apostolis, a 23-year-old software developer and team leader with a deep passion for programming, software design, and business applications. My enthusiasm for creating efficient and scalable solutions drives me to constantly learn and stay updated with industry trends. With hands-on experience in diverse projects across various business domains, including warehouse management systems for car parts and airlines, I excel at translating complex requirements into functional and impactful software solutions. My expertise extends to using EF Core and Angular, and I thrive in collaborative environments where I can mentor and guide others while driving innovation.
